

The Science of Truth, A Layerist Workshop

All thought and all spoken words as well as all forms of audio/visual communication are used to facilitate understandings and agreements between people. The degree of value that these understandings and agreements achieve are “measured” by how much they serve to satisfy a personal intimacy of self with others.

There is no absolute “TRUTH” in what you think or say when PAST experience is translated into words or any form of audio/visual language. Absolute truth can only exist within one single PRESENT moment of experience. An accurate impression of that momentary truth can only be recognized and understood through clarity; a clarity that can only come from a sensory driven view of that one moment's absolute truth. The clarity of that momentary truth which is now a memory will be additionally shaped by a consensus of agreement between self, others around you in the present as well as other experiences from your past. This further shaping by consensus is a process that alters the absolute truth and is then compounded with additional alterations by past memories of personal experience or history. That consensus of agreement by self and others will be placed into memory recall along with trigger oriented words and images to ensure some form of accuracy when that memory is used to influence FUTURE moments of “time”.

All thoughts, words and audio/visual forms of communication between people are based on a limitless number of absolute truths all of which automatically become altered by our memories, beliefs, desires, judgements, theories and assumptions. These altered truths will be used to strategically serve the person or persons they represent.

This workshop will use thoughts, words and audio/visual communication to demystify thoughts, words and audio/visual communication. It will do this to point you in a direction that can help you to more clearly see, hear and understand the truth and to use truth with as much accuracy as possible during and after each present moment of experience. This clarity or science of truth will also help you to know your true self. Clarity and consensus are the two most important needs for this workshop to work for you.

WARNING:

If you listen to or read and understand this workshop; if you agree with what you learn and then adapt the skills of Being a Layerist into your life - you will never be the same again! If you use this science of truth - there is no going back to how it was before you take this workshop. But that will happen even if you do not listen; even if you do not understand or agree, and even if you leave/stop this very second. This may not make sense to you as you arrive/start - but it will if you stay/continue.
